THE FEELING IN THE SOUTH.

We learned yesterday tout letters had been received by the proprietors of several of our principal hetels, from Southerners living in the cotton growing States, asking whether it will be safe for them to bring their families North to New York. This is a significant fact, and clearly proves the most exaggerated accounts have been given to the Southern newspapers of the condition of the things in the North, and also the feeling with which the people of the second States are regarded by their North-

THE EXCITEMENT AT THE PIFTH AVENUE BOTEL. A Flying Trip through Alabama, Georgia and Other Southern St tos—Political Fieling of the People—Sentiment Towards the Herald—Astembling of Volunteers—What They Say and Think—Plans of Jeff. Davis—Bragg's Army at Fort Policess—Proposition of the K. C. C.s.—Offers of Men from Tennesses and Missouri—Speech of Col. Tedd, of Missouri—Travellers from the North, dc., dc., dc.

The last time I wrote to the HERALD from the South was about one week ago, since which time I have been constantly travelling through the States of Georgia, Ala bama, Fiorida, Tennessee and Kentucky; but as all tele graphic and postal facilities have been positively prohibited Northern newspaper correspondents by the Conchronicle events as they have transpired. In my letter dated Savannah, Ga , the 19th last., in which I warmly and briefly alluded to what seemed to me the all-per-vading sentiment of the people of the South in the present political crisis, the principle upon which it stands, and tion of those principles of the new Southern government nent men of Savannah, who assured me that the sent; events, I would say that it was after I arrived South that the HERALD lent its whole aid crush out boid anarchy and rebellion. The news of this fact came upon the Southern people like a thunderbolt, and its leading men appeared more like men doomed to be hanged, by their elongated countenances, at what they chose to call an abandonment of its Southern principles. The news of the fact referred to was not only communicated through the ordinary channels of information, but was telegraphed to every important city and leading solitician in the South. the news of the fact referred to was not only communicated through the ordinary channels of information, but was telegraphed to every important city and leading politician in the South. The latter scemed as though they had leat their best friend, with this exception, that bitter curses and opprobrious epithets fell from their lips, with all sorts of threats of annihilation, interdiction, &c.

Proceeding from Savamach through the central nart of the State of Georgia, passing through Macon, Colombus and other large cities and towns towards Montgomery, I carefully examined into the positical sentiments of the people as I progressed. I found on my tour, and very shortly after I left Savamach, that the sentiment of the people of the latter city, and which seemed cool and deliberating, was entirely of another type in the interior of deorgia. Crowds of people at every station on the route assembled as each train arrived to hear the lattest news; but their whole and entire principle was to annihilate the demand Yankees forthwith, at all hazards, in order to put down what they term an interference with their local rights and institutions. They space of langing the Northern people with as much confidence as though it were a feat casy of accomplishment, and that the North was merely living on sufferance. To attempt to combat any of these erroneous impressions would have been like throwing a frebrand into a powder magazite, as I would not have been permitted to have stated a proposition without incarring the hot displeasure of men who seemed to look upon Northerners, of whatever political sentiments, in the light of radical abolitionists, not to be tolerated nor permitted to live. My ourney from Savamach to Montgomery, a distance of nearly four hundred miles, was evenful, and one which I shall never forget. Every passing train of cars seemed to have a lesser or greater number of newly raised volumers from a storing under orders of President layers, were wending their way towards. OUR PENSACOLA CORRESPONDENCE. PENSACOLA, Fig., Hpril 19, 1868. Fort Pickens

Two United States war vessels have put to see. The feet was probably informed of the accession of Virginia to-day. There are many Virginians in the fleet. It is supposed the ships will put into Norfolk for a narbor. Captain Vearson, for many years saling master in Warrington Navy Yard, went to Fort Pickens to day with a sing of truce. Subject of visit not transpired.

There are thre British ships in port, viz:—The Lord Stanley, Bighond Mary and Consul. Strange to may, there is no British Consul in Pensacola, where o as is manon needed at this time. Mr. Wim. it. Judah acted as Vice closed for the British government for a number of years, until the home government rescinded the emoluments of the office, and made it one of labor without recompense, when Mr. J. declined further service. There are spanish, Mexican and Brazilian Vice Consuls here.

The war star rages, and no one can predict the result.

The eagerness for an assault on Fort Pickens is increasing hourly, and it is not only from day to day, but from hour to hour, that the order for the attack is depected to be given. Whether General Bragg thinks himself strong enough to risk an attack at present rests with microst. He will act with viger when he does act.

A correspondent of the Penacola Observer was placed under arrest to day, by order of General Bragg, for imprudently disclosing some of the General's designs to the enemy through the columns of a newspaper. The correspondent was brought up from Warnington, which is about six miles from Penacola, and General Bragg's hendquarters, in charge of a guard of New Orleans Zonaves. The soldlery and people were much incensed against him, and it was feared at one time he would be motibed. He was, however, sent under a guard of four of the Penacola troops to Montgomery, where his case will be disposed of by the government. Newspaper correspondents have to be careful, and properly so, for the country is now to a state of war.
